

RON SMOORENBURG

Actor

Bio

Ron was discovered by Jackie Chan in 1997 to do the final fight scene in 'Who am I?' on the rooftop of the Nedloyd building in Rotterdam. He got this part after Jackie saw a video tape of Ron with the record highest kick (11 feet) and his kicking ability.

The movie got a Hong Kong award for the best action scene of 1998. After Ron went to Hong Kong to gain more action experience and worked with great action directors like Donnie Yen and Corey Yuen.

Thailand became the new center of action in Asia and Ron worked on 3 projects with Tony Jaa and build a huge resume there. It is also an entrance to Hollywood movies. He worked with Sharon Stone, Salman Khan, Kevin Bacon, Michael Clarke Duncan, Scott Adkins, Jean Claude van Damme, Gary Daniels and many many others.

In the years Ron got more character and developed more acting skills, got a part in Vikingdom as Captain of Jomsberg with Dominic Purcell and a main part as Sergei (Serbian Pimp) in Skin Traffic (2014). (which is his biggest acting role till now)

Ron's accent is very suitable for an Eastern European Character in this movie, and also doing the fight scenes with Gary Daniels went very smoothly because of his action background.

Now Ron gets taken more seriously as an actor as he can play both the good and the bad guy.
